Buying a Home

When you've found the home you want, you will need to make an offer to the seller. If your offer is accepted, you will need to sign a contract of sale. This is a legally binding document, so it is important to read it carefully and make sure you understand all the terms and conditions before signing. You may wish to seek legal advice before signing the contract. After signing, you will need to pay a deposit, usually 10% of the purchase price. The balance is paid on settlement day, when the property is transferred into your name.

Before settlement, you should arrange for a final inspection of the property to ensure it is in the same condition as when you agreed to buy it. You may also need to organize home insurance to protect your investment. On settlement day, your lawyer or conveyancer will complete the necessary paperwork, pay the remaining balance to the seller, and ensure the title of the property is transferred to you. After settlement, you will receive the keys and can move into your new home. Remember to notify utility companies and update your address with relevant institutions. Buying a home is a significant investment, so take your time and seek professional advice as needed.

Victim Impact Statement

Since the incident, I have had trouble sleeping and often feel anxious when I am alone. I am afraid to leave my house after dark, and I have lost my sense of safety in my own home. The emotional impact has affected my work and relationships with my family.

Before this happened, I was an outgoing and confident person. Now, I find myself constantly looking over my shoulder and feeling uneasy in public places. I have started seeing a counselor to help me cope with the anxiety and fear that I experience daily. My children have also been affected; they ask questions about safety and are reluctant to invite friends over.

The financial impact has been significant as well. I have had to replace stolen items and pay for repairs to my property. I have missed several days of work due to stress and medical appointments. The incident has changed my life in ways I never expected, and I hope the court will consider the lasting effects this crime has had on me and my family when making its decision.
